This chart courtesy sources listed show a number of metals that are rising as priced in US dollars (bull markets). None of them are outperforming gold.

This chart courtesy MacLeod Finance shows the declining purchasing power of the US dollar as priced in gold.

Featured is the daily gold chart. Price is still working on a large ARAT pattern. A rise above the blue arrow calls for target at 3,900.00. There have been 3 attempts at a rise above the blue arrow so far. Historically attempt #4 will be successful. The SIs are positive and the MAs are in positive alignment. The number of ounces backing GLD is unchanged. The GDI is also unchanged.

Featured is GDX the miners ETF. Price is rising inside the blue channel. A rise above the blue arrow will mark the start of a rally to the top of the channel. The SIs are at support and the MAs are in positive alignment and rising.

=== >>> MODEL PORTFOLIO

Each report will show the trades that were completed since the last report.

Since I do most of my trading on the TSX, I will show the stock symbol for the US equivalent in brackets. Note: when trading a pink sheet listed stock, you should always buy or sell using a specific price - never a 'market' order.

To benefit from this feature, pull up a chart for any of the symbols that I buy or sell. Determine if you want to do likewise or wait for another opportunity. If you're not sure of the fundamentals, - click on the website link provided. Always make sure the index or ETF that represents the sector is in harmony with your trade. I apologize for the short time I stay in some stocks, but this is all based on chart patterns. If the chart pattern changes from positive to negative – I usually run. Here are some of my trading habits:

- I eliminate all emotion. Stocks are simply investments that I use to improve the bottom line. I pick a stock or commodity because I think the chart pattern looks positive. Once I decide that we are operating in a bull market, I don't bother with sell stops - I patiently wait for the stock or ETF to come back into positive territory.
- When I do sell below my cost, I look at the loss as an opportunity to get into a winner.
- I use the 20 day and 30 day exponential moving averages at Stockcharts.com to help me decide when to buy and when to sell. Then I draw a channel, just as I do in the reports I issue. As long as the stock stays in the channel, I'll keep it as part of the portfolio, unless I decide to take profits.
- You've heard people say: 'Buy Low – Sell High'. Here is a variation on that advice: BUY HIGH – SELL HIGHER! It has been my experience that buying stocks that have just broken out to a new 5 year high have been the best performers in my portfolio. When a stock or commodity has reached this stage, there is 'blue sky' ahead.
- Next I look at the supporting indicators – especially the Accumulation/ Distribution line. When a stock or commodity becomes overbought (such as trading near the top of the channel, or making a 'double or triple' top), I usually sell all or part of my holding into the rally. . Over time I try to replace these stocks during pullbacks.
- Finally I make sure that the sector in which the stock or commodity operates, is moving in the same direction as the stock of commodity that I am about to buy.

Here are some kernels of wisdom from a very successful trader, Jesse Stine:

- Emotional intelligence is of utmost importance.
- Discipline is key
- Drawdowns are lessons.
- Patience is very important
- Ignore the news media
- Have faith in your system
- Trade with confidence
- Never get attached to a stock
- Be a contrarian
- Be a lone wolf.

According to an article titled: The Strange Behavior of Gold Investors, by Dimitri Speck (link is here): <https://www.gold-eagle.com/article/strange-behavior-gold-investors-monday-thursday>

Monday is a day when investors usually sell gold early.

1 transaction since the last report. I took profits by selling my shares in OMG.v at 0.70. The last 158 closed transactions resulted in 148 winners and 10 losers, producing a percentage of +93%. The reason why our portfolio is large is due to the desire to be of help to as many investors as possible. Our position in 'penny stocks' is always very conservative.

17 positions are 'under water'.

My portfolio consists of 73% precious metals, 21% in various other categories and 6% cash.

Here is my portfolio:

Please do your own due diligence. I am NOT responsible for your trading decisions.

Featured is the daily silver chart. The upside breakout at the blue arrow produced results, and is expected to yield results at the green arrow. The number of ounces backing SLV declined from 481.1 to 477.6 million. The downside reversal from Monday is causing temporary weakness prior to a resumption of the uptrend.

The SIs are positive, along with the MAs.

Featured is SIL the silver producers ETF. Price is rising beside the green support line and a confirmed breakout at the blue arrow sets up a target at 59.

Featured is URNM a Uranium ETF. Price is rising inside the blue channel. A close above the blue arrow calls for a target at the green arrow. The brown arrow points to a bull cross. The SIs are rising.

Featured is the copper chart. The breakout from the large triangle at the blue arrow produced a pennant. A rise above the green arrow will mark the start of another rally.

An Anthropic World

So God created man in His own image; in the image of God He created him; male and female He created them.

— Genesis 1:27

The 500th anniversary of Copernicus' birth was celebrated in 1973. Copernicus showed that the earth was not at the center of the universe, a scientific finding used to displace the earth and man from their presumed place of central importance in the cosmos. In celebrating the Copernican revolution, his followers were celebrating the demise of man and, more importantly, the demise of God.

However, at the celebration Brandon Carter, a highly reputed astronomer from Oxford, discussed his discovery of certain strange and almost inexplicable things in the world of particle physics and astronomy. They all seemed to that suggest that this world, and the whole universe, have been made for the purpose of hosting intelligent life on this planet—namely man. He noted, for example, that if the mass of the proton were just a tiny fraction larger or smaller, the entire solar system would collapse. Many similar physical constants, which appear optimized for human existence, point to the fact that this universe seems to have been designed for mankind. Carter's "anthropic principle" says that this universe has a "purpose." This is a dirty word to evolutionists, who have substituted "chance" for "design" and "purpose." But suddenly, at the 500th anniversary of the Copernican revolution, when the final spike was being driven into the significance of man, the anthropic principle was born. Despite man's attempts to deny God, He has left His fingerprints all over the universe.
